In this 21st Century, particularly in the era of Globalization, the entire globe has become vibrant in development with respect to Medical, Technical, Scientific etc. fields. In order to have communication with one to another, the most common globe language is the only 'English'.

Presently without 'English' language, no nation, community is in a position to compete with the developing or developed countries. Everybody knows that 'China' country has progressed well but could not reach the top position because until recently they were evasive towards learning English language. Now that country is inviting the competent English Teachers to teach them. English is indeed 'our window on the world'. It's a door to knowledge. Today it has become the operating standard for global communication. With the help of English language, it is easy to step into a world, which is full of challenges and possibilities. When we talk of Indian people, now a days because of learning English they are achieving to positions in various fields in the globe.

I am of the opinion, that there is no other alternative to any person/ Country except to learn the language of English. I would like to conclude this abstract by saying that how the people are addicted to 'mobile culture' right from Delhi to Galli. Similarly in near future we all observe that most of the people both in urban and rural areas will be equipped with the knowledge of English in this Globalisation era.

In the current century everywhere in the globe willingly our unwillingly everyone has been under the influence of Globalization. Therefore it has become compulsory on the part of every nation/state to pay the attention towards English language in order to develop the national economy as well as individual too. The globalization scenario made all most all countries including the so called socialistic countries like 'China', 'Russia', 'Germany' etc to make their mind set to modify and switch over to learn the English language.

In India when it was ruled by the British, the impact of English language has taken roots. Though the India got independence in 1947, the impact of English has grown multifold as the people move around the globe.

The Govt. of India during 1990s (after the demise of the late Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi)when late Shri P.V. Narasinh Rao has become P.M. the globalization policy has taken up at speed and in the same way the doors of Indian economy was opened, thereby the other countries also taken interest to invest in India. This is the main reason for the growth importance of teaching English in India.

The observation of establishing English Medium Schools even in remote villages go to show the awareness about the need of English language. Prior to 1990s and subsequently period if we compare too much improvisation availability of technology as teaching aids for teaching English is seen. It is also observed that even the State Govt. is making efforts to start English medium Schools. Previously only Private Sector used to, but now the Govt. is coming forward. It is not an exaggeration to say that there is totally a changed trend to shift to English medium rather than to study in mother tongue medium because of Globalization.

Now a days it is an accepted fact because of the changed educational policy of the Govt. billions and millions of foreign currency is available for the reason many people go abroad from India to do job and earn good amount of money. This has become reality only because we in our India has developed the art of Teaching in English efficiently and effectively. Even the countries like 'China' are inviting the Indian people to teach English language to their pupils/ students.

After observation of the above points in particular and happening of series of events in and abroad in general, we have to arrive at a conclusion that nobody can deny the fact of 'impact of globalization on our teaching English.
